The purpose of this study is to evaluate the response to oral Loperamide in 11 patients with idiopathic immune thrombocytopenic purpura (IITP) and chronic diarrhea. In 8 of 11 patients, the daily stool weigh showed a negative correlation ( $r = -0.62$ ) with the platelet count. Oral Loperamide (12 mg/day, 3 x 8 mg/day) was administered to these patients and the degree of response was evaluated as an increase in platelet count more than 30,000/microliter ( $10 \times 10^9/l$ ) by two weeks. The evaluation was performed by comparing the clinical symptoms and stool weigh before and after Loperamide. In 4 patients (2 with the initial or mild platelet count of less than 10,000/microliter, one with the initial platelet count of 100,000/microliter and one with the initial platelet count of more than 100,000/microliter), 2 g/day of Loperamide significantly increased the platelet count (38,500/microliter, 101,000/microliter) within 5 days and stool weigh was reduced (

A state report filed by the Legislature's nonpartisan fiscal staff raises questions about a plan to transfer vast acres of state-owned land in the Central Valley to an Oakland developer. The report, part of a larger analysis, alleges that the land would be sold at a fraction of its market value, and the proceeds would go to help support a department that is struggling with a budget shortfall of nearly $1 billion. "The state of California is in a fiscal crisis," said Assemblyman Rich Gordon, R-Menlo Park, chairman of the Assembly's Finance Committee. "This report raises the possibility that the state is selling this land for less than it's worth and then giving the money to a less-important agency that isn't showing any promise of real reform." Gordon said the report raises questions about why the state needed to sell the land, but the Assembly is working on a plan to safeguard the land, including more oversight of the financial transaction. He supports the idea of selling the land for a better price. In a joint release, Gordon and Senate President Pro Tem Don Perata, D-Oakland, who was also on the Finance Committee, noted that this is not the first time the Department of Parks and Recreation has had trouble meeting its budget, and the department has not proven it can turn things around. The department has also taken steps in recent years to limit funds that pay out to former employees, and cut
