GAMEPLAY When you enter the game, you will open your eyes on an unfamiliar world. Here, you will be the protagonist, playing the role of an adventurer known as a Tarnished. Tarnished is a title which anyone who has experienced the era of existence can understand, but for us, it is more than just that. The Tarnished here is not a tourist, but a character who has been called to the Lands Between and given unique powers. To express these powers, we create a new action RPG that can change the genre of RPGs. With these actions, a Tarnished will change their appearance. Not only that, but Tarnished can also conquer the world. After creating Tarnished, the game will be ready to play. To start playing, you need to choose the type of Tarnished that you wish to play. The choice of play style is based on the character you create yourself. Action RPG: Take the action and be a beast of beast-like skills and power, as you take on the roles of a Tarnished and fight in real time. To continue to play with a Tarnished, you must clear the next dungeon. With this action, you will earn EXP that will allow your character to level up, and raise your character's level. Through this, you can gain the skills necessary to play this game in order to effectively utilize your characters. Action Online RPG: Not only do you play in real time, but you also explore other player's worlds and adventure. With this action, you can freely travel to other player's worlds. In these worlds, you can move and explore freely, while playing with your opponent. Online Adventure RPG: Through this action, you can play a story that is different from that of the main story line. Q: Get-AzureRmResource failed with message listing dependencies? This is an ARM Powershell script. As there were resources I needed to create, I needed to get AzureRm resource id. If possible to create these resources the same time. I'll use the Powershell function Get-AzureRmResource, but this script never finishes, because Get-AzureRmResource says also that he is listing dependencies. And thus powershell is abscendingly really slow. I also tried with Get-AzureRmResource -CreationExpression "$id = new-azurestorageaccount -ResourceGroupName 'ExcelWorkBook' -Location 'Germany' -Name 'Excel1';id; New-AzureRmResourceGroup -ResourceGroupName 'ExcelWorkBook' -Location 'Germany' -Name 'Excel2';id" but got the same result. Is there a way to fix this? I want to be able to create this resources. I tried the same code in C# console app and it's working. But powershell ofcourse asking. I turned on verbose warnings but that doesn't help either, because I don't know what to look for. Get-AzureRmResource : The Set method has not yet been implemented for type 'Microsoft.Web/itc/hostedservices/2018-04-01/hostname/'.
