Saint Emiliana is a two-player, co-op deck-building card game of wits and mind games. Stoked by the desire to bring two friends together to play an engaging and fun game, this Facebook version enables you to make an avatar out of each player, giving you a place to track your friends' strategies, emotions, and lives. Saint Emiliana is a first-ever card game where every game has a different set of rules that fit the players' personalities, making it unlike any other game out there. It's a game of planning ahead and then hiding those plans, then hiding from your opponent, then attacking the other player…all while managing your own emotional states and actively participating in the game to win! When they lose, they'll feel it. It's different, it's memorable, and it's a new experience. You may not be able to see their expressions, but you'll surely know when you've lost. The ability to track and emotionally reflect on your own progress and the player experience is new and exciting! If you can't get through the campaign, don't worry! Social features like that have the potential to keep you coming back for more. ~ Next week, we'll be showcasing this game, and many others, in our Game to Watch For series. It's an exciting time for indie games on Facebook! ~ Reviews "a beautiful brain-busting game that reminds me of chess, a fun macabre look at the inner workings of a human mind... It's a hilarious and interesting game." - Wired "This is a delightful, clever card game that captures the spirit of chess while fleshing out the concept of strategy, psychology and narrative. If you've been meaning to try a card game but haven't gotten around to it, this would be a perfect introduction, and if you're already a fan of card games, this would be an excellent way to dive even deeper." - CG Magazine Reviews "makes you think about your friends, your relationships, and yourself." - iCocktail, #1 Top 20 Trending Apps of 2012 "Offers an interesting glimpse into our psyche...an interactive chess game in which you and your opponent are competing to be more entertaining than each other. You have to psychologically

Once you have Arc Surfer installed and fully understand how to play the game, start surfing! As you surf the stunning ocean you're looking for the hot spots which cause the sea to get perturbed, a rising wave. The bigger the rising wave, the cooler the sea around it. So the cooler the sea and the more fish will be released and you earn points! Each rising wave provides a signal to other players and a small bonus of 2-3 points which you can trade for some coins before the next wave comes. Very simple to play, only three buttons to click!

About Arc Surfer

Arc Surfer is a HTML5 3D ocean action arcade surfing game in which you catch fish and take them to cool a topless hot spot! The game is a multi player arcade in which you try to catch the most fish. In order to catch the fish you have to surf the ocean's waters around a volcanic lava flow. To complete each of the surfing levels (and numerous tutorial levels) a player earns a varied amount of coins and fish. In order to get more fish a player has to surf to the hot spots and release a fish. The more fish a player has caught the bigger is the size and color of hot spot in which they release fish.

Woman In Immigration Case Filing for asylum outside the United States can be a contentious, harrowing experience. For Rosy, an Ecuadorian woman who sought asylum in Canada, it did not end well. In November 2004, Rosy, 34, was driving through Mexico to reach the U.S.-Canada border when she was pulled over by the border patrol. The Mexican immigration agent told her that asylum in Canada was not acceptable. After communicating with the Canadian consulate in Mexico, she was offered a free flight and ordered to return to Mexico. The border agents said they would notify Ecuador to pick her up at the airport. Less than a week later, Rosy—who was carrying her infant daughter in a suity bag—left her husband and three children in Ecuador and began her trip north. She arrived at the San Ysidro border crossing between San Diego and Tijuana, where she filled out an asylum application. Rosy checked the box on the form indicating that she was an Ecuadorian citizen and not eligible for asylum—even though she left Ecuador seven years earlier. At the border that morning, she was interviewed by U.S. border patrol agents and U.S. immigration officials to give her a travel history, answer questions about her motivations, and show her identification. The U.S. immigration officials then issued a record of Rosy's interview stating that she denied being a citizen of Ecuador. They told her she would have to fill out a new asylum application. When Rosy did so, she checked the box indicating that she was a citizen of Ecuador and therefore could not apply for asylum. Twenty-four hours later, Rosy was taken back to the San Ysidro port of entry by U.S. Immigration and Customs Enforcement (ICE), where she was formally turned over to Canadian immigration and customs officials. According to Canadian law, Rosy was taken to a detention center where she was made to wait 18 hours before she was finally given a lawyer. The next day her attorney returned her to Canada, where she was taken back to an asylum office, but a hearing was delayed until 2003 because of a mixup in Rosy's file. Two years later, Rosy was told that her case was being deported because she had been staying on Canadian soil for such a long period of time. She was given 30 days to appeal. When Rosy didn't respond, her application was denied. The decision informed her that

In the city of Ciel, cut-throats fight with no rules. Rulers of Ciel prepare their rules to make the city run like their own personal game. To the outside world, Ciel seems to live a peaceful life. But beneath the surface of Ciel, cut-throats live and fight for their own personal reasons. Young girls need money to help them live. Rulers need the cut-throats to provide protection from any rival. And cut-throats often fight over the love of the girls they have in their own desires. Can you live in peace when you're fighting for your own desires? Ciel was a tranquil place. But when Ciel was attacked by strangers, the city of Ciel started to crumble. The town's residents had no choice but to join forces with various factions to protect their town from evil. Protection from the outside world is an important goal in Ciel, but sometimes protection isn't enough. Sometimes in life, it takes more than strength alone to survive. Show more Show lessThe next time you order in from Pizza Hut, you may get a little surprise delivered to your home: a bag of human hair. And as the International Business Times reports, Pizza Hut isn't alone. According to a lawsuit, one company has been supplying hair to its restaurant chains since the late 1960s. Although he won't confirm it just yet, the alleged hair trader admitted to the lawsuit that the hair he's been supplying his customers is from "human sources." Of course, you'll know he's kidding around if he says, "We're always experimenting with new strains of hair to perfect our pizza dough." But if he says, "We make great dough out of hair and it's really good with cheese," you might want to think twice. The suit—filed on behalf of a customer who received a delivery of hair—could be interpreted as a minor rebellion against the "flavor revolution." Of course, hair is that old thing—it might even have been the thing that helped start the pizza revolution. As it turns out, the first pizza was probably inspired by a recipe for Italian rabbit casserole. According to Pillsbury.com, the first pizza restaurant opened in 1889 in Rome, where it's still a pizza must-try for this year's World Pizza Day. For those who are in the mood for a fine meal and fine hair, Pizza Hut offers its customers a
