beta cell function after beta-cell transplantation]. Pancreatic betacell transplantation is an experimental method. The early indications of the efficacy of the procedure have been presented.
The function of transplanted cells was evaluated after transplantation. We have shown that in spite of the loss of beta-cells the functional parameters of transplanted beta cells were within the normal range. The regulation of insulin secretion and the interaction of transplanted beta cells with the surroundings, i.e. the immune system, is one of the important issues for the further development of beta-cell transplantation. Weekly assessment of left ventricular systolic function using tissue tracking radial strain in patients with obstructive sleep apnoea. Obstructive sleep apnoea (OSA) is associated with increased cardiovascular risk. OSA disrupts cardiac autonomic modulation and induces left ventricular (LV) diastolic and systolic dysfunction.

Cardiac magnetic resonance (CMR) can assess LV systolic function with myocardial tissue tracking (TT). We sought to evaluate whether OSA causes changes in systolic strain by assessing global and segmental TT in patients with untreated OSA and healthy controls (HC). In this cross-sectional study

STATE OFFICE OF ADMINISTRATIVE HEARINGS, Respondent. No. SC01-213. Supreme Court of Florida. October 18, 2001. Jeffrey D. Aitken and Kenneth Nellis of Carlton, Fields, Ward, Emmanuel LLP, Miami, FL, and Michael H. Carey of Michael H. Carey, P.A.,

Miami, FL, for Petitioner. James J. Carney, General Counsel and Deborah Gardella, Assistant General Counsel, Tallahassee, FL, and Christine M. Roach, Assistant General Counsel, Tampa, FL, on behalf of Respondent. PER CURIAM. We have for review Nearwolf v. State Office of Administrative Hearings, 726 So.2d 944 (Fla. 3d DCA 1999), because the district court's decision conflicts with a decision of another district court on a similar question of Florida law. See Kelly v. State Office of Admin. Hearings, 731 So.2d 664 (Fla. 4th DCA 1999); Harmon v. State Office of Admin. Hearings, 729 So.2d 988 (Fla. 4th DCA 1999).

We have jurisdiction. See art. V, § 3(b)(3), Fla. Const. Stacey A. Nearwolf petitions for writ of certiorari to the Third District Court of Appeal, in which the district court affirmed a final order entered by the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) terminating Stacey Nearwolf's employment with the Department of Transportation, Division of Motor Vehicles, because Nearwolf was absent from work without proper approval. Nearwolf asserts that this Court's opinion in Brown v. Department of Admin., Div. of Motor Vehicles, 740 So.2d 440 (Fla. 2d DCA 1999), requires the ALJ to comply with the holding in Mollere v. State Office of Admin.

Osteoarthritis (OA) is a common and disabling disorder that is often associated with chronic pain. The goal of this study was to determine the diagnostic accuracy of [(18)F]fluoride-PET for pain in patients with OA compared with reference standard methods such as positron emission tomography/computed tomography (PET/CT) and single-photon emission computed tomography (SPECT). Fifty-five patients with a mean (SD) age of 60 (9) years and a diagnosis of knee OA were enrolled and underwent fluorodeoxyglucose (FDG)-PET/CT as a reference standard. FDG-PET/CT and [(18)F]fluoride-PET/CT were performed on the same day.

Linear regression analysis for FDG-PET/CT and Spearman correlations were used for evaluation of pairwise comparison of the results obtained with the two modalities. Sensitivity, specificity, and accuracy of pain evaluation for the two modalities were also computed. Pain evaluation was available in 82% (44/55) of patients. [(18)F]fluoride-PET showed a sensitivity of 93%, specificity of 77%, and accuracy of 90%. FDG-PET/CT showed a sensitivity of 97%, specificity of 66%, and accuracy of 76%. A clinically significant correlation was observed between PET data and pain evaluation. The combination of both techniques showed a sensitivity of 90%, specificity of 76%, and accuracy of 85%. FDG-PET/CT can be considered as a very accurate method for detection
