Monica (Mimi) Kissi has traveled along with her father Vito Kissi, her brother and the whole family to the remote Indonesian island of Bali. Silk And Mirth has become a good refuge for her and her brother, as well as a perfect opening to the people of this land. She is learning dance, practicing music, painting, and making friends. She listens to the rhythm of the evenings in the streets, but when nighttime falls, nothing stops her from listening to her father's voice, narrating the fights he has been through throughout his life. From the page to the screen, from the group of friends he is surrounded by to the world that opens to him, Vito has dreams that could at any moment become reality. Heparin-Sepharose-4B has been widely used for fractionation of cells, tissues, and extracellular matrix. This resin has been used for the isolation of von Willebrand factor (vWF) and its fragments. The binding of vWF to heparin-Sepharose-4B is an example of non-covalent, positive, charge-dependent interactions between a ligand and a charged solid surface. It is known that platelets adhere to foreign surfaces, e.g., matrix proteins on sub-endothelium. This adhesion is initiated by the interaction of the platelet integrin receptor glycoprotein (GP) IIb-IIIa with two extracellular matrix proteins, vitronectin and fibrinogen. Heparin

sulfate chains have been implicated in the binding of these proteins to the plate
