Also new: the Baked in Paris, made in Spain collection, which launches in June and features the same high-end design on the shoes and handbags as the American collection, but with a couple of new styles. We also love these orange, yellow and blue hues in the spring-summer 2017 collection of the Australian label Kate Recher. Known for its innovative designs, Kate is already set for a spot on the 2017 runways and its designers are now outfitting the models backstage. We also like this collection by Italian label Michel Muller, which features a special print by French artist Marc Thibault on its sequin and chiffon dresses. Kate is also known for its prints, which are reproduced in 3D. We love the lobster-print pattern by French artist Catherine Achatz on the jacket and skirt in this campaign. Meanwhile, the sequin dress by Italian designer Stefano Tonchi is printed in 3D, with a pattern inspired by Max Ernst's paintings.

Q: The model backing the 'Basket' context has changed since the database was created I've checked other posts with this issue but none of them had any answers. I'm trying to add my method in the ProductController to Post The method I created is public void UpdateBasket(Product product) { try { db.Entry(product).State = EntityState.Modified; db.SaveChanges(); TempData["Message"] = "Product " + product.ProductId + " updated successfully."; } catch { TempData["Message"] = "Product " + product.ProductId + " cannot be saved in the Basket table."; return; } } I'm getting the following error, I'm guessing its because the model has changed, how would I fix this? System.Data.SqlClient.SqlException (0x80131904): The model backing the 'Basket' context has changed since the database was created. Use Code First Migrations to update the database (Alternatively,
